MOSES & SINGER FORMS INTERNATIONAL TRADE GROUP

Firm Expands Global Legal Services

NEW YORK, August 3, 2009 – New York City-based law firm Moses & Singer LLP announced the formation of its International Trade Group, recognizing the firm’s growth in that area. Michael Evan Avidon, the Group’s co-chair stated, “Along with our existing practice areas, the focus of the International Trade Group will allow us to offer corporate and private clients more comprehensive counsel in the international arena.” The Group assists clients from various industries in all aspects of the trade process, including:

- preparing and negotiating distribution, sales, supply, licensing and other agreements;
- negotiating and documenting trade finance arrangements, including letters of credit;
- assisting with international IP protection and infringement matters;
- providing advice and guidance with customs compliance and enforcement, export controls, and Section 337 investigations; and
- representing clients in international arbitration and other dispute resolution proceedings.
